IHPA to host joint international conference on advancing value based health care

The Independent Hospital Pricing Authority (IHPA) will host a joint international conference in Sydney this October. IHPA's annual Activity Based Funding (ABF) conference is this year being held in conjunction with the 33rd Patient Classification Systems International (PCSI) Conference (ABFPCSI 2017).

This conference offers a unique platform for healthcare professionals involved in ABF in Australia to meet with and share experiences with the international patient classification and casemix community.

The harbour city will provide a stunning backdrop for the combined program which will focus on the theme "Advancing value based health care", with an assortment of pre-conference workshops, conference sessions, and social events scheduled across the event week, 9-13 October. Conference delegates will have the opportunity to see ABF in action at one of the pre-conference hospital site visits, and hear from international leaders in the health care industry during keynote, plenary and concurrent conference sessions.

A variety of registration packages are now available for purchase via the conference website. For more information, please visit <http://abfpcsi2017.com.au/>.
